Ground work completed in preparation for new playground at Elba Elementary School

by Linda Hodge, Editor

The construction of a new playground for Elba Elementary School reached the end of Phase I of construction last weekend, and that makes way for the new equipment to be installed in August.

"Under a reimbursement program, Elba City Schools received a $4,000 grant from the Wiregrass Resource Conservation and Development Council [RC&DC]," said Elba City Schools superintendent Chris Moseley. "We were able to utilize those funds for the surfacing and leveling of the ground work before our new playground equipment is put on the property."

Moseley said Elba City Schools is very appreciative to the Wiregrass RC&DC council because the funds they are providing allowed the school to get Phase I of the playground project [prepping the surface for it] completed before the new equipment even arrived to be constructed for use by Elba Elementary School students.

"In our agreement for the $4,000 reimbursement funds the work had to be done prior to Aug. 1st for us to receive the monies," Moseley said. "We have reached that goal and will now submit our paperwork to the Council for reimbursement of the funds."

The superintendent said he felt like a check presentation for those funds to the school system would be held in the near future.

Moseley said he was very pleased with the work done to prep the playground area for the new playground equipment. He also noted the school system had received a grant from ADEM for rubber mulch to be included on the playground once the equipment is in place.

The bulk of the monies for the playground project are coming from funds raised in memory of TJ Northey, an Elba Elementary School student who died last summer in a water-park accident while vacationing with his family. Northey's mother and step father, Leigh and Mark Wicker, are both educators at Elba City Schools.

Moseley said TJ's mom had been the leading force in planning and preparing for this new playground, which will have several ties to things that TJ would have loved and enjoyed.

"I think Leigh's overall plan is to add something of need to the playground each year from here on out also," Moseley said. "This will be a phenomenal way to remember TJ while also giving our students at Elba Elementary School a top-notch playground to enjoy their recreation time."

Moseley said he was excited to see this project taking shape, and he looks forward to seeing the finished product in the near future.

The next step in the project will be the addition of the new equipment once it arrives later this month.

Contractors Tim Hudson and Jeremy Sanders are shown above moving dirt Friday, July 26, to level the ground on the Elba Elementary School campus to make way for new playground equipment. The new playground for Elba Elementary students will be top-notch, according to Superintendent Chris Moseley and it will also play tribute to TJ Northey, a young EES student who died too suddenly last summer due to an accident. A reimbursement grant from the Wiregrass Resource Conservation and Development Council is supplying $4,000 to cover the costs for the ground work on this project.

The result of the work by Hudson and Sanders was evident by Saturday afternoon, July 27th (as shown). Moseley said this completes Phase I of the overall playground project.

Elba man arrested for attempted arson

An investigation Thursday morning, July 25, by Elba Police on an alleged vandalism report led to the arrest of an Elba man.

Shortly after 6 a.m. Thursday morning, Elba Police were dispatched to check into a report of a possible vandalism attempt at Dry Creek Logging, located on Larkin Road in Elba. Officers completed a report noting damage to the property.

Coffee County Jail records indicate that Robert [Ryan] Gibbs, age 32, of Elba was arrested later that morning, and he was charged with attempted arson - second degree. This was said to be in connection with the earlier vandalism report at Dry Creek Logging. Gibbs remained in the Coffee County Jail as of press time this week, according to the jail's inmate roster.

Elba Fire Department excited about new training facility

by Jack West, Intern

Following years of planning and required approvals, the Elba Fire Department has begun construction on an updated training facility.

The new facility will be located on Larkin Road, across from the airport and next to the Elba National Guard Armory.

Elba Fire Chief Drew Parker said when this facility is completed it will lower homeowner's insurance premiums for Elba residents since the facility will lower the city's ISO rating.

"The lower that rating is, the cheaper your homeowner's insurance premium will be each year," Parker said.

An ISO rating is how insurance companies can quantify the risk posed to any given property. It is measured on a scale from ten to one, with one being the safest. Currently, Elba's ISO rating is a four, but Parker said the city was very close to being a three at the last inspection. Each point lower roughly equals a 20 percent decrease in homeowner's insurance premiums.

"We were within 2.96 points from being an even lower rating which would have lowered us to a three," Parker said. "This training center alone, once we get it completed, will give us four points which would have got us to that point."

Training centers like the one Elba approved are a response to an interesting problem that many small-town fire departments are having. As building codes and materials have improved in recent years, the number of large-scale fires has gone down. Fewer fires means fewer opportunities for firefighters to get experience.

"Over the years, the kind of on-the-job training that firefighters used to get, we aren't getting anymore," Parker said. "Every firefighter is required to have so many hours per year of training, and when you have a facility like this, you have a legitimate way of going out there and being able to we've got to bridge that gap to keep our folks trained so when the real thing does happen, we are prepared," Parker said.

Now that the department has a location and approval for the project, Parker said the biggest obstacles for construction will be funding and time-related.

"We don't have a certain amount of funds that we're looking to pour into it each year," Parker said. "There is no set timeframe. It's as concern is ensuring that they keep the town "covered" while construction is going on.

"We are trying to figure out how much money we can comfortably put up there and keep up everything else like trucks and equipment here," Parker said.

The department provided a rough schedule which shows the facility being operable in two years and completed in five.

"Well done is better than well said." - Benjamin Franklin

Most of us have read about or heard reports of well-to-do parents being caught making cash pay-offs to get their child admitted to top-tier universities. Now, we read some parents are actually giving up legal custody of their children to qualify them for certain college scholarships. Apparently a relative, or close family friend becomes the child's legal guardian in the junior or senior year of high school. The child then uses a loophole in scholarship applications to get special credit for having no legal parents. This is not just blue collar or welfare workers doing this, but lawyers, doctors and at least one assistant principal have been identified in this 'beat-the-system' scam. It is too early to say just how many people are using this shameful method of beating the system, but one is too many. Hopefully these adults will get their just punishment, but probably the heaviest punishment will fall on the child who must explain to all their friends and fellow classmates that they lost scholarships (and/or college acceptance) due to cheating.

Something happened several weeks ago that really warmed our heart. For background realize that for the over 55 years we have been in this newspaper office many, many high school students have hit us up for donations, buy an ad in our program, etc., and most of the time they got the money. Well, it was probably last month, maybe in June, but a charming young lady came in with an offer for us to again buy a program ad. . . . which we did. No big deal, it has been done hundreds of times over the years. Then a few days later we get a hand written 'Thank You' from this student! Never, ever has that happened before. Oh, the kids are almost always nice, they smile and say thank you at the point of contact, but this young lady went the extra mile with the hand written note (we saved it). Somebody in the life this very mature 'child' has taught her manners beyond the basics. We are grateful first to this high school student . . . she knows who she is . . . and secondly to her parents, who are molding a future leader and doing it well.

Most of us don't write notes as we should. Another person pops into our mind, one who does write notes, often going above and beyond. That caring is surely part of the reason her professional career has, and continues, to blossom. We once bumped into her at an airport when we were sending one of our children off to Washington D. C. She was taking the same flight to D. C. and the next week we got one of those handwritten notes commenting on how well mannered our child was and predicting great things for this teenager. Over the years she has written us, and untold number of others, notes about things - both small and large - and we continue to be impressed. . . as her star continues to rise.

As most of our readers already know, we are not a Donald Trump fan. For that we don't apologize, nor should those who don't share our views. This is America and we should continue to take pride in our freedoms, including the right to openly support various ideals and political candidates. However, we do get upset when someone very clearly throws out untrue statements - about anyone - including Trump. Most humans have enough faults without someone having to invent out-and-out lies in their criticisms or efforts to unseat a candidate or office holder. Please don't destroy our great life and freedoms with such obvious trash.

In border battle, agents face growing crisis

Guest Editorial by Congressman Bradley Byrne (AL-1)

Lately we've heard a non-stop narrative from the national news media and left-wing Democrats about the horrific conditions at our border. The never-ending insults directed towards our border patrol agents and law enforcement has outraged many of us who appreciate their invaluable service to us. Last week, I traveled to our southern border near El Paso, Texas to talk with them directly and get a firsthand look at the conditions they face.

Early Monday morning I arrived at a border location called Monument III on the Border of Sunland Mark, New Mexico and Ciudad Juarez, Mexico. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) agents and military personnel offered me an intensive behind-the-scenes look at their operations.

A shift in migration patterns in the last five years has led to many more border crossings in numbers that overwhelm our personnel and infrastructure. Just a few months ago, CBP agents had 2,000 illegal border crossings in downtown El Paso in a 24-hour period.

Most of these migrants, in a scheme that is rampant across our border, cross with their wrists out, waiting to be arrested so they can file an asylum claim. After processing, migrants are released. Few show up for court dates, and most asylum claims are rejected or found to be fraudulent.

Without question, most of these migrants experienced a long, arduous journey. Border areas are owned by various cartels, and as one agent explained, "nobody gets here without paying something." Coyotes and cartels collaborate to extort migrants. Horrific physical and sexual abuse is widespread.

The wall sections here have made patrolling the area easier. At Monument III, the physical barriers were constructed in 2007 after the Secure Fence Act of 2006 was passed on a bipartisan basis (back when most Democrats supported a wall).

Fortunately, the Department of Defense is currently providing camera surveillance so more CBP agents are freed to make arrests. But personnel remain stretched thin. Oftentimes a single agent must arrest and detain dozens of migrants alone. I was told of three CBP agents making 400 apprehensions at one time.

My next stop was a tour of Bridge of the Americas (BOTA) Port of Entry (POE) with CBP OFO (Office of Field Opportunities). BOTA is a cargo, pedestrian, and vehicular POE that sees an astounding 24,000 pedestrians and 30,000 vehicles daily.

CBP agents at BOTA told me they find a shocking amount of drugs including fentanyl, oxycodone, heroin, meth, and marijuana. Due to the growing strain on resources, the National Guard has been here on a voluntary basis since October 2018 providing valuable clerical work and technology support.

From here we traveled to the El Paso Paso del Norte (PDN) Point of Entry, a pedestrian POE. Recently most of the migrants here have been Mexican, coming to the United States for work.

But many have dangerous motives. Just days before, agents found 14 pounds of cocaine packed in a vehicle's quarter panels. The increased traffic makes it extremely difficult to adequately screen all the crossers. Sadly, this lack of resources was a constant theme during my visit.

Without exception, the border agents, law enforcement and military personnel along the border were transparent and professional. The slanderous characterizations of these brave men and women from the Socialist Squad and their media allies is shameful. We can be proud of the work our border agents do, but they made clear the scope of the crisis we face. The numbers of people crossing our border are staggering.

We need additional resources, including technology, barriers and more border agents out on patrol. And we must change our asylum laws to eliminate the loopholes fueling this migration boom.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

This is a reply to the editorial that was written last week [July 18th newspaper].

I will never call 911 for anything again. Especially in a domestic violence situation. No woman should ever have to go through what I went through. A man should never put his hands on a woman, no matter what she's done.

The treatment was unprofessional and unsafe. I should never have been arrested to begin with. The officer who sent me in my house to get my husband had a weapon and I did not. He sent me inside when he should have gone himself. He put handcuffs on me when I had done nothing wrong.

I didn't find one thing safe at Coffee County Jail. They talk about safety first but nothing was safe there.

I called other jails and was told a female officer should have done the strip search with a curtain pulled. I was exposed to a male officer continuously walking by.

Just remember if you are arrested that Coffee County Jail is not responsible for any lost items. They did not tell me this when I was booked in. My wedding band was never returned to me. It was 3K and valued at $3,000. I was also never given my medication. I have to take 13 pills every day. They had my medication but would not give it to me. The same nurse who bandaged my wounds was later arrested for bringing drugs into the jail.

Because of my experience at Coffee County Jail, I now suffer from nightmares every night. I will never forgive and never forget. Imagine how you would feel if it were your daughter or wife that went through this.

I would recommend that any woman in a domestic violence situation call 211. They will give you all the help and support you need while treating you with respect.

Coffee County native Jimmy Baker encourages Troy University graduates, July 26, to make a difference in the lives of others

Jimmy Baker, Chancellor of Alabama's Two-Year College System, told Troy University graduates on Friday, July 26, that the world needed their leadership and encouraged them to go forth and make a difference.

More than 500 students received their degrees Friday morning during the summer commencement ceremony inside Trojan Arena on the Troy Campus. The University also honored Baker with an honorary Doctor of Laws degree during the ceremony.

Baker said the opportunity to meet many of graduates prior to the ceremony had given him confidence in the country's future.

"The United States of America has gone through trials and tribulations, and we still have our problems that we have to be sensitive to and resolve," Baker said. "But with people like yourself, who are dedicated to and capable of making a difference, I'm confident that our country is in good hands and has a bright future."

Baker encouraged graduates to be aware of the past so that they will be prepared to make a difference in the future.

"History has a lot to do with the future," he said. "I learned long ago that I can only help plan tomorrow if I know what happened yesterday. I want you to always be aware of how you can do good things, and I encourage you to do everything you can do to bring about improvement wherever you are."

A TROY alumnus, Baker said he was delighted with the opportunity to provide the commencement address.

"This is a different place than when I was here many years ago, but it still has that same spirit and that commitment to preparing students to be leaders," Baker said. "There is a big world out there that needs a lot of help, and I welcome you into that fold. The world needs you, and I encourage you to do all in your power to make a difference for your family, your community, and the larger community."

A native of Coffee County, Baker was appointed to lead the Alabama Community College System in 2017, after having served as acting chancellor since August 2016. A graduate of New Brockton High School, he completed undergraduate studies in business administration at TROY and earned a graduate degree in economics and education administration, and an educational specialist degree from Auburn University, where he was also certified in school administration. Baker was named Troy University Alumnus of the Year in 2018. His wife, Joy, is a retired teacher and the couple has two daughters and four grandchildren.

Coffee County Schools set to host Kindergarten Jumpstart on Aug. 5th

Kindergarten Jumpstart for the Coffee County School System [Kinston, New Brockton and Zion Chapel] will be Monday, Aug. 5, from 8 a.m. until 11 a.m. at the schools.

Jumpstart is a one day program that allows incoming kindergarten students an orientation opportunity before the beginning of school. The day is three hours in length during which time the students are exposed to a mini kindergarten schedule, allowed to tour the building, and introduced to their teacher as well as several other staff members.

All students and parents are to report to the school library with their beginning school supplies. The students will then go with their teacher to the classroom.

The parents will remain in the library for an orientation meeting with the principal. When this meeting is completed the parents will go to their child's room for a meeting with the teacher.

During the parent/teacher meeting the teacher will explain her discipline plan, class schedule, rules, drop off/pick up procedure for students, answer questions, and collect lunch/snack money for the first week of school.

Parents will need to provide transportation for their child.

A Free Coke

My oldest son always had a competitive streak in him. If I were to be completely honest I would have to admit that he got it from me. When it came time to play little league baseball he took it very seriously and worried about things like wins and losses, what position he played, and how many hits he got. He played for several years and I helped coach his teams and really enjoyed it.

I was expecting much of the same as my second son got to the age when he got to the age that he could play. However, his personality was a little different than his brother's. He was more happy go lucky and just happy to be part of a team. It didn't bother him in the least if it was his inning to sit in the dugout while his teammates were out in the field and he was just as happy when he struck out, as he was when he got a hit.

Don't get me wrong, he wasn't a bad baseball player he just wasn't as intense as his older brother.

On the night of his first game of controlled chaos that is called tee-ball he taught me a lesson that I will never forget. He had played well and hit the ball good, however his team had lost by a score of something like 49-48 (remember this is tee-ball and everybody bats and there are very few outs ever recorded). As he climbed up into my truck after the game I patted him on his leg and said "son even though y'all lost, you did great and I'm proud of you." He looked up at me with a grin on his face and I expected to hear something like "thank dad you're the best", but that's not what he said. He held up the cup of soda in his hand and said "dad it doesn't matter if we win or lose we still get a free coke at the end." It was at that moment I realized that he got what I had been missing. Wins and losses are temporary but the coke will always be there waiting.

Most of us go through life worrying about what we accomplish or what we acquire, but those things are temporary and will be forgotten after we are gone. What really matters is what is waiting for us after the game.

What is your priority what you do while you are here on this earth or what you have laid up in eternity? "Do not store up for yourselves treasures on earth, where moths and vermin destroy, and where thieves break in and steal. But store up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where moths and vermin do not destroy, and where thieves do not break in and steal. For where your treasure is, there your heart will be also. (Matthew 6:19-21)"

Troy alumna takes helm of insurance program in Sorrell College of Business

A graduate of Troy University's Risk Management and Insurance Program has taken the reins of the program as its director.

Dr. Courtney Bass Baggett, a 2012 RMI graduate, was appointed to the role by Sorrell College of Business Dean Dr. Judson Edwards, following the retirement of past director Dr. Ed Duett in May.

"I have the highest confidence in Dr. Courtney Baggett to lead and advance the tradition of excellence in Risk Management Insurance (RMI). We have been so fortunate to have student-centered, industry engaged leadership with Dr. Ed Duett and Dr. Carol Jordan," Edwards said. "As a graduate of the RMI program in the Sorrell College, Dr. Baggett understands better than anyone what is needed to advance the quality reputation of our RMI program. She possesses all the skills and experience to take RMI to new levels of success."

Baggett joined the faculty of the Department of Risk Management and Data Analytics in 2017 as an assistant professor, having been an assistant professor at Butler University in Indianapolis, Ind. Prior to that, she had been a doctoral fellow at Florida State University's Catastrophic Storm Risk Management Center. She earned the Ph.D. at Florida State in 2017 and holds the CPCU, ASLI and ARM professional designations.

Prior to entering academia, Dr. Baggett worked as a licensed agent in Alabama, gaining experience within the insurance sector at All Risks Ltd., Peachtree

"As a graduate of this program myself, I'm very excited to work with our students, alumni and industry friends to further strengthen our ties to the risk management and insurance community," she said. "I have the opportunity to work closely with our students for the past couple of years and I'm confident they are truly unique both in their disposition and work ethic. I feel very fortunate to be able to interact with them in a more exclusive capacity."

As director, Baggett said she would focus on student preparation for the workplace and expanding relationships with industry. Baggett has served as an invited speaker on topics related to risk management and insurance, and she is especially interested in natural disasters, crisis and enterprise risk communication strategies, and insurance regulation, specifically that which impacts the excess and surplus lines market.

Within the Sorrell College of Business, Dr. Baggett is a member of the Strategic Planning Committee, the Scholarship Committee, as well as the Faculty Qualifications Committee. In 2017, she was selected as one of five individuals to serve as a Chancellor's Fellow, a year-long program at TROY focusing on executive leadership and communications training. She was also recently elected to Troy University's Faculty Senate. Outside of TROY, she serves on the board of directors for the Southern Risk and Insurance Association (SRIA).

She and husband, Bo, reside in Andalusia.

The Pressbox

By Ricky Mularz, Sports Editor

With school only a week away, my grandson Lawson declared over the weekend that he still needed some new clothes before he could start the third grade. I thought his Mom had taken care of his clothes shopping a few weeks back, but since he insists he is in need I guess it will be off to the stores this weekend so that he can look forward to his first day back.

For what it is worth....

 The Elba Tigers season preview is featured in this week's 'Sports' and it is a unique season for the Tigers as they host six home games and for the first time in years have two games on the schedule in the month of August. Elba was left with only nine games on the schedule after not renewing its contract with Tate High, of Florida, and preferred not to play in the final week of the regular season to allow for rest before making a playoff run. Since Daleville was also struck with only nine games and was open in the early-August slot, the two teams got together, and so, Elba will play two games in the month of August. The six home games are good for everyone involved and should help bring in a little extra revenue while cutting back on a fifth road trip. With Daleville and Opp coming up in the opening two weeks the Tigers will have to be ready to roar right out of the gate if they hope to improve on last season's win total.

 If you don't believe the Alabama High School Athletic Association is a money making organization you are badly mistaken! The AHSAA announced last week that it would waive its membership dues for the 28th straight year, at a total savings of $84,000 to its member schools, and would also return $2 million to the schools in revenue sharing. While the AHSAA does take its share of criticism for many things, its member schools are proud to be in the organization, and its revenue sharing plan and history of giving back to the schools makes it one of the best in the entire nation.

 While on the subject of the AHSAA, it also made the state's private schools happy last week when its Central Board tweaked its controversial 'competitive balance rule.' The rule, which led to a lawsuit from St. Paul's, was adopted in 2017 and set up a points scale of a school's success in sports over a three-year period. In the past, private schools earned 4 points for each championship appearance it made over a three-year period, 2 points for a semifinal appearance and 1 point for a quarterfinal appearance. If more than 4 points were earned, the school would be moved up one classification for the next four years. Under the new rule, the points will add up for only two years, and if a school is bumped up a class, it can come down in only two years. The change will also result in a change in reclassification, since the AHSAA will have to wait until the individual sports seasons are concluded to determine points earned. The AHSAA will still announce the classifications of its member schools in early-January every two years based upon student enrollment figures, but will not be able to finalize region make-up until the individual sports conclude their seasons. I'm sure the public schools aren't too excited about the change, but will follow the rules and continue to push to move the private schools into their own classification.

 If you wonder why so many top notch high school athletes head to the University of Alabama to play football, here are a couple of million! The NFL announced contract figures last week for many rookies in the league and after taking a look at the list found out that ten Crimson Tide draft picks from last season combined to sign contracts in excess of $85 million. Quinnen Williams has a four-year guaranteed contract that totals $32,529,371, including a $21,677,724 signing bonus, while Jonah Williams' contract totals over $17 million; Josh Jacobs' contract totals almost $12 million; Irv Smith's contract totals almost $6 million; Damien Harris' contract totals almost $4 million; Christian Miller's contract totals over $3 million; Deionte Thompson's contract totals almost $3 million; Ross Pier-schbacher's contract totals almost $3 million; Mack Wilson's contract totals just under $3 million; and Isaiah Buggs' contract totals over $2.6 million. All contracts are for four years, with the biggest three being guaranteed. Pro football is not a sport, it is a business!

 In closing.... my baby brother Gary was laid to rest last weekend at a rural cemetery in the Sandy Ridge community, in Lowndes County, and like my wife Kathy said, "It is a shame that most family reunions these days occur at funerals." It was good to visit with our extended family and come together to pay our final respects to Gary, but it also hit home with me that as I grow older my own mortality is something that draws more and more attention. It was a lovely service and a true tribute to Gary's 61-year visit here on Earth.

Elba Tigers 2019 football schedule kicks off early with two games set for August

The Elba Tigers will be looking to improve on last season's 8-3 record and add another region title to their list of accomplishments when they kick off their 98th season on the gridiron against a schedule that includes six home games and two games played in the month of August.

The Tigers have an overall record of 571-359-27 since the inception of football 97 years ago, with a home record of 297-147-11 and a road record of 237-182-7. During the 97 years playing football, they have posted 63 winning seasons and 15 10-win seasons.

The history book reveals the Tigers first 10-win season was way back in 1954, their first playoff appearance and first region title came in 1979, their first playoff win came in 1984, their first 11-win season came in 1985, their first 13-win season came in 1989, and their first 15-win season was recorded in 2011.

The Tigers own a total of seven state championships, claiming titles in 1951, 1954, 1955, 1989, 1992, 2011 and 2015. Their longest winning streak stands at 24 games, while the longest losing streak is 9 games.

Following is a preview of the upcoming 2019 season:

August 23 At, Daleville

Elba will open the season on the road when they travel to Daleville to tangle with the 2A Warhawks, of Coach Desmond Lett. The Tigers own a 14-5-0 series edge against the Warhawks, have won four of the last five meetings, and in the last meeting in 2017 posted a wild 34-28 victory.

Chase Rogers brings home ECC Golf Championship for second year in row

by Jack West, Intern

An Elba police officer went from cuffs to links at last weekend's Club Championship golf tournament at the Elba Country Club [ECC].

Last Sunday, July 28, police Sgt. Chase Rogers sank a final putt at the ECC to win its Club Championship golf tournament for the second year in a row. Rogers finished the two-day tournament 4-under-par and beat second place finisher Dylan Moulton by a single stroke.

At the close of game on Saturday, Rogers held a two-shot lead over Moulton and knew he would have to play particularly well to maintain that lead.

"Playing with a lead is one of the most difficult things to do in golf," Rogers said. "It's easier to go out there and fire at pins and chase somebody down and take chances than it is to preserve a lead, in my opinion."

Nevertheless, Rogers was able to hang on to his lead even when Moulton began to surge from a four-shot deficit on the back nine.

"Dylan played great," Rogers said. "Hats off to Dylan especially down the last stretch."

Rogers, age 30, has been playing golf since he was 5-years-old and first teed off on the ECC's course over a decade ago. He played golf throughout high school and won the Phil Mickelson Award for National Freshman of the Year while playing golf at Huntingdon College.

"I fell in love with golf growing up," Rogers said. "I can't remember a summer that didn't go by that I wasn't at the golf course, if not every day, every other day. I would walk from my house over to the country club, and we would be there from sun up to sun down playing golf all day."

Now, as an officer, husband and father, Rogers said he doesn't find as much time to play golf as he would like to.

"My child is 18 months old, and 18-month-olds tend not to play much golf," he said.

However, Rogers still finds time to play in the summer months, and if last weekend is an indicator, he doesn't need much more practice than that.

Chase Rogers' swing was in good form last weekend for the ECC Championships tourney. Rogers finished one stroke ahead of second place finisher Dylan Moulton to bring home his second consecutive championships trophy for the Elba Country Club's Club Championships golf tournament. Rogers has been playing golf since he was age 5, and he said he fell in love with the game growing up.
